Salvador Dali works going on display at WAG

Hello Dali. Exhibits include works from Spanish Surrealist and 75 on loan from Beaverbrook's touring British art collection

Two exhibits opening simultaneously at the Winnipeg Art Gallery this weekend may together amount to the most surreal experience the gallery has ever offered visitors.

The parallel shows — Dali Up Close and Masterworks from the Beaverbrook Art Gallery — open Saturday, giving visitors a look at works from Spanish Surrealist Salvador Dali and 75 masterworks on loan from Beaverbrook's touring British art collection, including paintings by Emily Carr, Tom Thompson and Thomas Gainsborough.

"I love this juxtaposition," said WAG director and CEO Dr. Stephen Borys of the contrast between the exhibits at a special sneak peek held Wednesday. "Someone comes in here and looks at a 17th- or 18th-century masterwork and then they look at this bizarre creation by Dali — they're both art."

Borys said the idea to combine the shows — which can be seen for the cost of one ticket — came after the WAG secured the Beaverbrook exhibit, which includes three Dali pieces.

"So when we knew we were getting the Beaverbrook show and these three Dali masterworks, I asked our curator ... to organize a Dali show," said Borys. "Dali is the connector."

As well as paintings, watercolours, drawings, jewelry and sculptures by Dali, the exhibit also includes a collection of photos of the artist taken by Philippe Halsman.

The exhibits can be seen for free on opening night Saturday as part of the gallery's Nuit Blanche celebration, and will remain on display until Jan. 25.

The Winnipeg Jets have defended Thomas Steen's participation in the team's Fan Fest event last weekend, despite the recent focus on domestic violence issues in sport and outstanding charges against the former Jet and current city councillor.

However, one of the event's sponsors is cutting its ties with the hockey legend.

Steen, whose jersey was retired by the original Jets, is facing charges of assault and uttering threats related to an alleged domestic incident that happened last May.

He was subsequently arrested in July for allegedly breaching a no-contact order. None of the charges have been proven in court.

Steen appeared at the

"Our policy towards domestic abuse is in line with the National Hockey League's. It is important to allow the legal process to play itself out before rushing to judgment," said Scott Brown, Jets spokesperson.

"Thomas has been proven neither guilty nor innocent."

But Scotiabank and the NHL Alumni Association said they were unaware of the charges.

Dylan Wade, spokesperson for the NHL Alumni Association, echoed Findlay's com-

MAYORAL CANDIDATES SHARE IDEAS

Judy Wasylycia-Leis: More affordable housing units needed in Winnipeg

Judy Wasylycia-Leis said on Wednesday she wants to create more affordable housing units in Winnipeg by giving developers a break.

During a campaign announcement at a public housing development on William Avenue, the mayoral candidate said the city could spur the creation of similar projects by donating land, waiving development fees and expanding the use of tax increment financing.

She also suggested city planners could identify target neighbourhoods for new affordable housing projects, and pre-zone the land to speed up the development process.

While Wasylycia-Leis claimed her housing strategy "doesn't really cost the city any money," she acknowledged the city would forsake significant amounts of new revenue.

While housing issues are typically the responsibility of the provincial government, Wasylycia-Leis said the city needs to "take an active role in developing policies that give households of all income levels a variety of options."

She said much of her affordable housing platform came from the city's existing planning framework, Our Winnipeg, and from suggestions by the Right to Housing Coalition. COLIN FAST/FOR METRO

Brian Bowman: Increasing and investing in Winnipeg's tourism is a top priority

By the numbers

$3.86

Right now, Winnipeg spends $3.86 per capita on tourism and arts initiatives.

Mayoral candidate Brian Bowman said he wants to "aggressively" go after tourist dollars, and said he has his eye on major events like the 2023 Pan Am Games and the 2026 FIFA World Cup for the city.

"I believe we can host another Pan Am Games, possibly 2023, or even a Commonwealth Games, or be a host city for the 2026 World Cup," he said at a press conference Wednesday morning.

Bowman said the first thing he would do if elected mayor would be to make Tourism Winnipeg an independent body, and he would make sure revenues generated from the city's hotel accommodation tax would be reinvested back into marketing Winnipeg, especially as a winter destination city.

Bowman said his goal is to increase tourism by 50 per cent to six million yearly visitors, and he would incrementally increase funding into tourist and arts initiatives until Winnipeg was spending $5 per capita on these activities. Right now, Winnipeg spends $3.86 per capita.

He said he would implement a program called the WINNIPASS, which would provide discounted access to tourist destinations, like the Winnipeg Art Gallery. "Obviously we will need to work with stakeholders to accomplish that task."

Bowman also acknowledged that the city would have to finish paying for the RBC Convention Centre expansion before plowing money into tourist promotions and marketing.

Bowman made the announcement at the Forks in front of the monument to the 1999 Pan Am Games, which Winnipeg hosted successfully.

Gord Steeves: Reinstating EPC secretariat would mean less political interference

Gord Steeves, candidate for mayor of Winnipeg

Winnipeg city hall's political and administrative hands need a buffer, mayoral candidate Gord Steeves said on Wednesday.

Steeves said if elected mayor, he'll resurrect executive policy committee's secretariat, which was discontinued about five years ago while he was still a councillor.

"We need more openness and less political interference," said Steeves, who voted at that time against the discontinuation.

Asked by Metro whether he felt the secretariat could have prevented the fire halls and police headquarters scandals, Steeves said, "I can't say for sure, but my concern is that the answer to that question may be yes."

Steeves said that among the practices he'd like to see "reviewed" is the walking on of reports right before meetings, since this doesn't give councillors enough time to fully absorb what they'll be voting on, and the use of in-camera.

The secretariat, added Steeves, would be in line with the "open meeting law" that's used in the U.S.

Union denies it violated campaign laws with JWL support

The United Fire Fighters of Winnipeg has denied accusations it violated election laws with its endorsement of Judy Wasylycia-Leis.

At a campaign rally on Monday, dozens of UFFW members wore yellow "Fire Fighters for Judy" T-shirts and held similar signs.

Union president Alex Forrest said 250 union-organized members would work for Wasylycia-Leis, and boasted of his organization's growing campaign expertise.

Rival mayoral candidate Robert-Falcon Ouellette questioned whether this support breaches the city's campaign finance laws, which forbid any financial or in-kind contribution by unions.

"If the union is spending its funds on shirts, signs and executive salaries to support Wasylycia-Leis' campaign, the amounts must be disclosed," he said in a statement on Tuesday.

In response, Forrest said the union hasn't done anything wrong.

"Every single person volunteers of their own decision and as a matter of fact we advise all volunteers of this," he explained. "We just direct our members to the candidates to work for."

"I actually don't mind him making such silly accusations as it keeps us in the media and it makes him look bush league and not informed," added Forrest.

A spokesman for Wasylycia-Leis confirmed her campaign is being invoiced for the cost of the shirts and signs.

Councillors vote nearly unanimously on issue at Mayor Katz's final council meeting

BERNICE PONTANILLA
bernice.pontanilla@metronews.ca

It was a final day of action at city hall, and council made the most of it, wading into the issue of missing and murdered women and reversing a hit to Winnipeg drivers' wallets in time for winter.

On Wednesday, city council adopted a motion by Couns. Dan Vandal and Jenny Gerbasi that called for a public inquiry or national roundtable on missing and murdered indigenous women.

The motion was debated for about an hour, with most councillors voicing support.

At a glance

Could a water park be in Mayor Sam Katz's future?

- He left that possibility open during a scrum with Metro Winnipeg and Global News following his final council meeting on Wednesday.

- "There's a couple other things I may look into. Now that I'm back in the private sector, the No. 1 thing I get asked now is when is our city going to get a world-class water park," he said. "It's something we need.... I think it's a shame that Winnipeggers have to go to other cities."

- He's also looking forward to getting back to his baseball team, the Winnipeg Goldeyes, business projects with his wife and spending more time with his family.

In the end, only North Kildonan Coun. Jeff Browaty voted in opposition.

Vandal said he was disappointed to not see the vote unanimous, but "Coun. Browaty has his reasons and the important part was that it was near unanimous."

"Hopefully we're not the last," said Vandal, who seconded another motion with Mayor Sam Katz on funding for Ndinawe.

That Katz/Vandal motion, which is a $300,000 joint effort with the provincial government that will expand drop-in hours at the youth centre, passed unanimously.

Council also voted against doubling fees for leaving a vehicle on the street during plowing.

Explosion sends man to hospital

Crestview. Cause of blast that destroyed ground floor unknown

ELISHA DACEY

elisha.dacey@metronews.ca

An explosion at a townhouse in Crestview sent one man to hospital in critical condition.

Firefighters were called to the scene on Apple Lane before 7 p.m. Tuesday after an explosion knocked out a wall and destroyed the first floor of a two-storey condo unit. Neighbours told Metro that a man was found in the parking lot, badly burned.

Deputy Fire Chief Joe Seewald said he couldn't confirm that neighbours helped by covering the man with wet towels. He did confirm that a man was taken to hospital in critical condition with second- and third-degree burns. He is now listed as being in stable condition.

Emergency personnel also rescued a dog from one of the units. The animal was unharmed. No one else was home at the time.

Seewald said it's likely the building, which contains three townhouse-style condo units, will have to be torn down.

"We might be able to save the (farthest) unit on the end," he said. On Wednesday morning, half the townhouse unit had been pulled down.

He said it was too early to determine a cause, but neighbours said the man had been working to strip floors in his basement. Damage was later estimated at $450,000.

Hundreds of neighbours watched in awe as firefighters continued to pour water on the blaze through the evening. One neighbour started a collection for the family of the victim, who was identified by MGEU as local paramedic Corey Schroeder.

Critics seek answers after cost for hydro line doubles

Manitoba's Opposition Tories and other groups called for an investigation Wednesday into the spiralling $4.6-billion cost of a major energy project.

The Tories called for the auditor general's office to investigate why the price tag for the Bipole Three hydro transmission line has more than doubled since 2007, when it was first estimated at $2.2 billion. The Tories also said a probe is needed to find out how long the government has known the true cost.

The Manitoba Liberal Party, the Canadian Taxpayers Federation and a coalition of landowners along the transmission-line route also back an investigation.

Manitoba Hydro announced last week that the cost of the project had jumped, mostly due to higher-than-expected costs for converters needed along the line.

The Canadian Taxpayers Federation first raised concerns in 2009, citing leaked Manitoba Hydro documents, but officials at the Crown corporation rejected the idea at the time.

"There needs to be accountability here. There's a history here of Hydro knowing some things behind closed doors," said federation spokesman Colin Craig.

The minister responsible for Manitoba Hydro, Stan Struthers, said Wednesday the higher costs only came to light over the summer as bids came in on the project.

Police files detail night of 2nd video

Project Brazen 2. New police documents recount the night the alleged second crack video was shot, suspect's phone sought

Newly released documents show Rob Ford's sister told police the Toronto mayor was smoking crack cocaine with her in late April in the company of a drug dealer and a friend of Ford's who is facing criminal charges.

The documents, filed with a court by police to obtain a search warrant, say Kathy Ford was interviewed by investigators after reports surfaced last May of a second video allegedly showing the mayor smoking crack.

Police say Kathy Ford told them her brother arrived at her house "intoxicated" but not "high," and that he was drinking and play-fighting with Alexander Lisi, who was never hurt. Ford also told police a man named Michael "Jugga" James sold drugs to her and her brother.

Released Wednesday by a judge, the documents indicate that police believe the second video was recorded April 26 by James, leading police to request a search warrant for three cellphones belonging to James, believing they will find video and audio that may provide evidence of drug possession by Ford and both drug trafficking and drug possession by James.

The allegations stem from Project Brazen 2, a police investigation surrounding the Toronto mayor, and have not been proven in court.

Surrey, B.C. Ex-convict accused of killing teen had worried about reoffending Documents reveal that a man accused of killing a 17-year-old British Columbia girl told a parole board in 2008 that he was worried he would harm someone else if he was ever released from prison.

Just months before Raymond Caissie's sentence was complete, in March 2013 a parole board refused to release him, saying he was of moderate to high risk to reoffend violently and sexually.

Documents dating back eight years show Caissie, who's now 43 years old, told the board that he was afraid of returning to society because he didn't have the skills to live on his own, had never held a job and worried about harming someone.

After serving a 22-year sentence for sexually assaulting a woman in Abbotsford, B.C., he was released in June 2013.

He now faces a second-degree murder charge in the death of Serena Vermeersch, 17, whose body was found last week in Surrey, B.C.

MIKE

They have the same name. They're the same age. They're both gay. They have the same creative passion. They're both poets, and there's something profound in their story.

Meet Holly Painter, 29, and, er, Holly Painter, 29, the unconnected women who have spookily similar lives.

They call themselves "email doppelgangers" because they get each other's messages. They have similar website addresses. People confuse them, even in face-to-face interactions, and it got so weird that eventually the pair met to have a laugh about it.

The two women are from opposite sides of the U.S.-Canada border, but, meeting Wednesday, they chatted like old friends and even finished each other's sentences.

Here's how it all started. "One of my friends said he really loved my poem on female genital mutilation," said the American Painter, who's from Detroit, but lives in Singapore. "Um, what? That's not the sort of thing you forget writing about. So I went and looked around and I found Holly."

The pair met for the first time over breakfast in London, Ont., where the Canadian Painter lives. Her counterpart was passing through on a research trip for a book she's writing.

During their chat, the American Painter tells of an encounter with someone who complimented her on a stage performance she never gave. It turned out to have been the Canadian Painter. That's even weirder because, whatever the similarities, the women don't look alike.

But, even as they talk, they find more things they share. Each volunteers with kids. Each has a younger brother. Each has a day job in publishing. They talk over one another's laughter as the matches are made.

"I guess it's a little surreal," says the Canadian Painter. "I suppose it's not totally surprising that someone has the same name ..."

"... but all the other similarities as well, it's a bit bizarre," her doppelganger finishes.

They don't even notice how closely meshed their speech patterns are, until it's pointed out.

"What struck me," continues the Canadian Painter, "is the fact that technology is this connecting tool."

"We're poets as well, so poetry for me is a way to connect to other people. Generally, I would do that in person, but we were able to find each other online."

And the two friends have made a decision. There's no alternative: They have to make poetry together.

"I was thinking there must be other people out there who are email doppelgangers," the Canadian Painter explains. "I was thinking, there must be something else I can do to get a poetry project in the works."

At least we know their names will rhyme. It doesn't get quainter than two Holly Painters.

N.S. man charged with breaching publication ban in sex-assault case

Charges have been laid in connection with a Facebook post that allegedly breached a publication ban in a recent high-profile sexual-assault case in Halifax.

Const. Pierre Bourdages said Wednesday that a 62-year-old Dartmouth, N.S., man was served with a notice to appear in court in connection with a Facebook post that included the name of the young woman that the accused, Halifax lawyer Lyle Howe, has been convicted of assaulting.

"There are orders issued by the court for protection of the victims, of their name and identity," said Bourdages. "Unfortunately an individual decided that they would post the information even though there was a publication ban."

The post in question appeared in a support group for Howe shortly after he was sentenced in late July to three years in prison for sexual assault.

Quoted

"If a publication ban is in effect, you don't name the victim, period."

Halifax resident Nicole Pettipas, who filed a complaint with police about the alleged breach

"It was my hope that ... through our efforts as a support group, we would prove Lyle's innocence," reads the post, which was reproduced in screenshots on Reddit and Twitter — with the complainant's name redacted.

"That his one-nite fling with (the complainant) was consensual ... and that Lyle would be vindicated."

Howe testified during his trial that he'd had consensual sex with the victim after an evening of drinking in March 2011, but the Crown argued that the woman was too impaired to provide consent.

Howe is appealing his conviction.

Bourdages said police launched an investigation into the alleged breach after receiving several complaints about it.

Halifax resident Nicole Pettipas filed one of those complaints, saying Wednesday she was impressed with how seriously police investigators took the issue — and "really pleased" to see charges laid.

"I'm just glad that message is out there; if a publication ban is in effect, you don't name the victim, period," Pettipas said. "Don't get smart and publish names just because you're upset."

"And victims will see that and know that they're protected."

Wish you could get groceries at a drive-thru?

Well, stop wishing. Loblaw will test a program that lets customers buy items online, then have them loaded into their cars outside grocery stores

Loblaw Companies Ltd. is preparing to pilot a grocery click-and-collect program, which will allow shoppers to order online and pick up their completed order at stores.

A Loblaw's store in Richmond Hill, Ont., has been set up with a bright orange click-and-collect area that includes assigned parking. Customers will be able to have the groceries they chose and paid for online loaded into their vehicles.

Loblaw announced earlier this year that it would pilot a click-and-collect program, but provided few details. A company spokesperson declined to elaborate on Tuesday, although he did confirm that Richmond Hill will be the first location to offer the new service.

"The service is not yet available to the public, but we're excited by the prospect of offering busy customers another option to complete their shopping, saving considerable time in the process," said Loblaw spokesperson Kevin Groh.

While click-and-collect is not well-known in Canada, the service is widely used in Europe and at some stores in the U.S., to service time-starved customers who don't have time to shop themselves.

In France, one in five shoppers report having used click-and-collect services from grocery chains, according to Canadian Grocer editor Rob Gerlsbeck. TORSTAR NEWS SERVICE

Report. U.S. treasury dept. still approving 'excessive' raises for GM executives

The U.S. Treasury Department has continued to approve "excessive" pay raises for top executives at General Motors and its former consumer finance arm, both of which received taxpayer-funded bailouts during the financial crisis, a new government report says.

The government watchdog that oversees the $475-billion US bailout said Treasury approved cash salaries exceeding $500,000 last year for 16 of the 47 top executives at General Motors Corp. and Ally Financial Inc. Treasury allowed total pay packages, including company stock, of at least $1 million for every top executive at the two companies, according to the report released Wednesday by the special inspector general for the Troubled Asset Relief Program.

It said the government approved $3 million in pay raises for nine GM executives.

Sanctions. Canada is tough on Russia, but not when it comes to oil

For all its much-touted toughness in imposing economic sanctions against Russia, Canada has been significantly more timid against one particular target: the oil industry.

A database of sanctions compiled by The Canadian Press suggests Canada has been almost three times less likely to penalize Russian oil companies than the United States.

The Harper government has imposed economic penalties against five Russian oil companies, compared to 13 firms targeted in that same sector by the U.S.

That's despite the fact that in its vast array of more than 175 sanctions targets, Canada has been as tough as the U.S. — if not tougher — on other segments of Russian society, including private citizens, the defence industry, mining, and financial-services companies.

GAME ON! THE FIVE STORYLINES OF '14-'15

The NHL is back after its traditional 12-day hiatus, and this season promises 353 days of excitement!

Will the Toronto Maple Leafs be terrible, or worse than that? Can the NHL's near-destitute players get by after a decade under the salary cap? And which lucky ticket holder will be the "100th fan" in Florida Panthers' history? With so much going on it seems like there's dozens of storylines in the 2014-15 season. But, no, there are five.

1. NHL to test rule banning players from crushing opponents' skulls:

As it's picked up speed, hockey's had an alarming tendency to bend players' craniums like so many iPhone 6s. But this year new rules will ... Oh, nope, sorry, I've just learned the rules won't change because violence is "part of the game." What they've banned instead is the penalty-shot spin-o-rama, because that was fun, thereby contravening the terms of the collective bargaining agreement.

HE SAYS
John Mazerolle
metronews.ca

2. Gary Bettman sets goal to learn offside rule:

NHL commissioner Bettman has had his successes, yet his small-town charisma has never caught on with fans. Bettman says he's always loved the game, though, which is why this year his goal is to learn the rules. "The NHL is so fast, which is why I've never been able to figure out how the offside thing goes," he said. Bettman also said he hopes to stay to the very end of a game this year, provided traffic isn't bad.

3. Analytics debate to be settled in big game between jocks and nerds: Everybody's got an opinion about "fancy stats," the popular analytics that measure things like shot attempts. Anti-fancies say the only important stat is the score, while pro-fancies look at the ice and see The Matrix, or the motorbike scene from TRON. Regardless, it will all be settled on the big, frozen lake near the tracks when The Nerds play The Jocks to settle this once and for all. Could it be the one thing they forgot to measure was their love for the game?

4. Stanley Cup to stay in the U.S. Given the expense of ferrying the Stanley Cup between Canada's Hockey Hall of Fame and whichever American team has won it this season, the league's GMs agreed this summer that the cup will stay in America "where it belongs" until Canada can actually win the thing.

5. Given the major violence, steroid and racism scandals that have plagued the other major North American sports, Gary Bettman has promised that all the NHL's scandals will remain solidly on the playing surface. "Whether it's brutal violence, homophobic remarks or flagrant cheating, I can assure you that the NHL will keep these tactics on the ice where they belong," he said. Bettman added that, despite the scandals, everybody is involved in sports for the same reason: to make as much money as humanly possible.

Game on!

The Art of the Brick exhibition has travelled the world showcasing artist Nathan Sawaya's Lego creations. On Friday it opens to the public in London, England.

There are more than 80 works in the exhibition that span Sawaya's entire career as a full-

Sawaya has now been creating Lego artworks for seven years, although Lego has been a passion for him since the age of five.

His first large build was a sculpture of a dog he created when he was 10 after his parents refused to buy him a pet pooch.

Sections of the exhibition include Sawaya's oversized 3D

After a two-year hiatus, Dan Mangan is back — with a new name. The two-time Juno Award-winning musician is forging ahead as Dan Mangan + Blacksmith.

The Vancouver singer-songwriter, who has released three studio albums under his own name, added Blacksmith to the equation to acknowledge his long-time band of John Walsh, Gordon Grdina, Kenton Loewen and, often, JP Carter, Tyson Naylor and Jesse Zubot.

"These guys have been playing with me for years and, when you're touring in a band and playing 150 to 200 shows a year, it's not just your time you're putting into it. You're also putting in a lot of your energy, passion and life force into this train that keeps going," says Mangan, 31.

"I felt for a long time I needed to honour that a bit more, and I think anyone that has been to our shows in the last few years probably felt like they were watching an ensemble, so it always felt strange to me that the only name on the marquee was Dan Mangan."

Although Mangan did take

Juno Award-winning Vancouver musician Dan Mangan and his band now go by Dan Mangan + Blacksmith. JONATHAN TAGGART a two-year break from touring, he's been anything but idle. He and Blacksmith have been hard at work crafting a new album, with its title and release date to be announced.

Vessel, the album's first single, is featured in the soundtrack for Hector and The Search For Happiness, a new film starring Simon Pegg. Mangan composed the film's score.

Also, Mangan is a new dad. His actress wife, Kirsten Slenning, gave birth to their son, Jude, in spring 2013.

Unpredictably, having a son has made Mangan's music less soft and sentimental, with Vessel sounding far more aggressive than his previous folk-focused efforts.

"I feel like it's really important to stay current, and when I say current, I don't even mean keeping up with other new music. I just mean keeping up with my stream of thought and not really putting too much focus or anxiety into keeping an audience," Mangan said. "I think whatever audience we have come because I trusted my gut at each step of the way so I'm just continuing to do that."

DAN MANGAN, ALONG WITH THIS BLACKSMITH BANDMATES LOEWEN AND GRDINA, WILL PLAY THE BREAK-OUT WEST KICK-OFF PARTY AT FORT GIBRALTAR THURS. OCT. 2. WINNIPEG BAND YES WE MYSTIC OPENS. In addition to variety and quality, there are numerous additional good reasons why now is the perfect time to purchase a new home. Financial institutions are still offering long term mortgages at rates among the lowest in decades. Housing prices continue to increase in value year after year, making them among the most sound of all investments. Manitoba new homes are the most energy efficient in the country and a move to a new home results in significant energy savings.

Manitoba's new home construction industry is strong and vibrant. MHBA member builders and suppliers keep abreast of the latest technology, trends and techniques to ensure that your new home offers affordability, quality and choice.

Enjoy the 2014 Fall Parade of Homes and thank you for visiting.

Parade of Homes VIEWING TIPS

FROM THE MANITOBA HOMES BUILDERS' ASSOCIATION

- Wear comfortable slip-on shoes: Many neighbourhoods have multiple show homes, which means you'll probably park in one location and walk to all of the homes. Upon entering each home, you must take off your street shoes in order to tour. Given that some neighbourhoods have more than 10 homes open for viewing, a comfortable walking shoe that slips on and off easily is ideal.
- Don't forget the one-offs: Enjoy the variety in subdivisions with multiple homes, but don't miss the hidden gems in neighbourhoods that have only one Parade listing.
- Talk to the agents: Sales agents can fill you in on unique features, energy efficiencies and construction materials that make each home special.
- Have fun: You can visit as many show homes as you like, as often as you like. It doesn't matter if you're in the market for a new home or if you're just looking for life-size design inspiration. Take a friend, take your time, and have fun.

Boxtrolls is Canuck's directing debut

Ask Canadian illustrator Graham Annable how he landed his first big directing gig in stop-motion animation and he simply shrugs.

Each step toward his upcoming 3D feature The Boxtrolls has been an unpredictable sequence of happenstance, he insisted during a visit to Toronto this past spring. "I think back to when I graduated from (Oakville's) Sheridan (College) — which is over 20 years ago now — and the thought that I would be back in Toronto speaking about a stop-motion animated feature that I co-directed would never have entered my mind," Annable said. Annable logged a lot of hours as an animator at places including Chuck Jones Enterprises and George Lucas' video game company LucasArts, where he spent 10 years.

Metro World News in Hollywood

Here's a fun game: Sir Ben Kingsley has made a lot of films since Gandhi in 1982, but at least one of them was a terrible experience. So take a look at his IMDb page and guess which filmmaking experience was so toxic it prompted him to torch the screenplay. He's not saying which film it was.

"I actually burned the script," Kingsley says while promoting his latest film, the stop-motion animated film Boxtrolls, which we can rule out from being the offending production in question.

"I had a ceremonial burning of the script. The director was such an awful person who was so discourteous to the cast and so amateurish. It was a colossal waste of good energy and time. All actors want to do is please and get it right, and it was so difficult."

The Boxtrolls opens this Friday in theatres. CONTRIBUTED

One way to avoid any repeats of such an experience? Taking matters into his own hands.

"I've created a production company with my wife. We've got six films on our slate, and one of them is about a naval admiral," Kingsley says.

"I want to play a man in uniform. I've got tremendous respect for that life that they lead. We know so little about it. It's never discussed or talked about, when they come back from battle. I want to examine the choices that have to be made in those terrible times. That's one of the films on our slate."

And it will likely be a far cry from his Boxtrolls character, the devious Archibald Snatcher, who looks and sounds nothing like Kingsley himself. "My physicality on screen — the puppet — is very unlike my own silhouette. The movement and the mannerisms that you see on screen are not human," he says. "I tried to echo that with stretching vowel sounds and my accent and playing with my voice, from a very relaxed starting point. I actually was lying down for most of my recordings."

While Kingsley only had a bit of voiceover work before Boxtrolls, he's got more lined up already, with Jon Favreau's take on The Jungle Book, requiring only Kingsley's voice.

"Mowgli is a real child, and he'll be surrounded by computer-generated animals," Kingsley says of the project, in which he'll play Bagheera the leopard.

"It will be my voice. That's what Jon wants. I offered him all sorts of different things, and even an Indian accent, but he said, 'No, I want your British voice.' This script is probably a lot closer to Kipling than the original Disney one was."

No word yet on whether he'll be doing this job lying down as well, but it's safe to say he won't torch the script.

Bryan Cranston. Breaking Bad star tapped for film about China's Great Wall

Deadline reports that Bryan Cranston is in early negotiations with Legendary Pictures to co-star in The Great Wall, which is to be helmed by Chinese filmmaker Zhang Yimou.

According to the entertainment news site, the former Breaking Bad star could share the billing with Matt Damon, who is also reportedly in talks to join the film.

The feature, which has been aiming to get off the ground at Legendary Pictures for years, will explore the origins of the famous Chinese landmark.

First erected to protect the Chinese Empire's borders starting around the 5th century BC, the Great Wall has been demolished and rebuilt several times since then.

Originally, the feature was slated to be directed by Edward Zwick (Love & Other Drugs, Defiance) and to star Henry Cavill (Man of Steel). The filmmaker ultimately backed out of the project to direct Pawn Sacrifice, a movie on the chess champion Bobby Fischer with Tobey Maguire in the title role.

Second baby Bell doesn't stress actress

Kristen Bell says she's much more comfortable during her second pregnancy — not just because she has a better idea of what to expect, but because she's no longer trailed by paparazzi.

The actress established the No Kids Policy earlier this year that saw stars unite to withhold interviews from outlets that published photos of celebrity children without parental permission. With a spate of A-list signees to the policy, entertainment news outlets quickly curbed their practice of showing such images.

"I feel a lot safer because I'm not followed at all now," Bell said.

How to find the happy bits in life

Hector and the Search for Happiness. Simon Pegg and Rosamund Pike talk about fame, fortune, and why it doesn't always bring contentment

scene@metronews.ca

In the new film Hector and the Search for Happiness, Simon Pegg plays the title character, a psychologist with a tidy, uneventful existence.

He shares his predictable and safe life with Clara (Rosamund Pike), an ad agency writer who creates names for pharmaceuticals. They chug along happily until one day Hector snaps and sets out on an archaeological dig of sorts, to discover what happiness means to people.

"With this film," says Pegg, "people will often flip-pantly say, 'He lives with Rosamund Pike, he's got a nice house...' which so misses the point. You can have all that stuff. The point is we take the least sympathetic demographic on the face of this earth, the white upper middle class male and say, 'He has a problem.' It just goes to show that if he can be there and be unhappy then anybody can be unhappy."

When asked if show biz success is a recipe for happiness both Pegg and Pike chime in.

"It's a question I have been asked," says Pike. "Fame and money, surely they are the ingredients to a happy life? The point is we keep sadly seeing that unless you are happy before you get those things it's not a recipe for happiness."

"Not to bring it up in a facile way," says Pegg, "but Robin Williams' death is an indication of that."

"I find for me I have to be happy in my real life, in the real world, and if I'm happy there I can be happy elsewhere and can enjoy this job."

"I've been desperately unhappy while working. I remember when I went to L.A. to do Mission Impossible III I wasn't in a great place and I got there and I remember thinking to myself, 'I'm in a film with Tom Cruise and yet I'm unhappy.'

"It was an epiphany for me."

"Obviously the idea of a successful career is that you look like a swan gliding and nobody sees the paddling duck feet," says Pike, "but they're definitely there. I think the message of the film is 'You can't really know happiness unless you are prepared to embrace life with everything it throws at you.' The unhappiness too."

"When you go through something horrific in your life, loss or death or illness or whatever, people say this will make you stronger and you think, 'Oh sod off,' but of course it does."

"It makes you appreciate things in the future more and you do feel happier for having been through the bad times."

Scan this photo with your Metro News app to see a trailer of Hector and the Search for Happiness, starring Simon Pegg and Rosamund Pike, which opens this Friday in theatres. The film premiered at the Toronto International Film Festival.

Media's models. The maker of Kate Moss explains social media's ever-growing effect on the fashion world

RICHARD PECKETT
Metro World News

Gone are the days when models, like Victorian children, were seen and not heard. Nowadays their social media following on Twitter and Instagram can be as fiscally valuable as their face and figure.

Sarah Doukas, founder of agency Storm Models, explains that "there are girls who have huge followings, so we have to monetize that with a client. We've had to teach them because they would come to us and say, 'It's an advertising job.' We would say, 'What do you mean advertising? Is it e-commerce?' They would hide under the table and it wouldn't mean anything to them but now it should be monetized in a big way. It's a big element."

Cara Delevingne's flock of Twitter followers numbers almost two million, while her Instagram account is just shy of seven million.

The 22-year-old's audience reach rivals that of the big brands such as Burberry, Pepe Jeans and Mulberry for whom she models and subsequently markets for, thanks to her candid behind-the-scenes social media sharing.

"I remember being horrified a couple of years ago when she was in Paris and watching on our computers as Cara was mobbed outside a show by the general public and not by the paparazzi. And I was like, 'God Almighty, this is extraordinary, this cannot be happening,'" exclaims Doukas from her glass-walled office.

Inevitably, Delevingne's clickable antics in entering into the public interest — or rather the interest of the public — creates a ready stream of gossip-fuelled picture stories of bleary-eyed partying or even a snap of the starlet sinking her teeth into model and bestie Jourdan Dunn's butt at the recent GQ Awards.

But Delevingne, who not only survived tabloid accusations of dropping a cocaine baggie outside her London home last year, is in even greater demand with her ineffable mix of disarming charisma and zany ADHD childishness. It's her USP (unique selling point).

"When she was four years old, she was always an unbelievable mile-a-minute jumping bean. I said, 'She will never be tall enough' but I did always think she would act," reminisces Doukas. Of course, she was right.

Then again, the maker of industry greats has a knack for spotting a marketable quirk.

It's a calculated gamble that saw Australian model Andrej Pejic — now known as Andreja after sexual reassignment surgery — added to the women's and Storm artists boards.

"From the minute I saw Andrej (as she was then), I embraced him as a person because not only was he tremendously beautiful looking but she is also tremendously bright — she is extraordinary," states the scout.

Pejic has since closed the Jean Paul Gaultier show and walked for designers such as Christian Dior and Marc Jacobs, with plans to move into the acting world.

However, Doukas, who set up the agency in 1987, chides the industry for its lack of inclusivity in terms of race and gender diversity.

"I just don't think we have enough diversity."

Designers are still reluctant to move away from the Caucasian esthetic that dominates the runways, although the fashion month cities (New York, London, Milan and Paris) are starting to cast more Asian models.

"It's what they think will sell," remarks Doukas.

She explains that it's the simple fact that the industry comes down to sales that empowers the public both as consumers of fashion and social media to drive the change away from runway and high-street homogeneity.

Doukas believes that "when you get back to the power of social media and if someone like Andreja Pejic can become a voice with all these followers, then brands will be forced to embrace her, or whoever."

Husband swept off his feet by a trio of tiny robotic cleaners

iRobot's dust- and dirt-devouring gadgets delight skeptical hubby

LARRY
life@metronews.ca

My wife is an electronics junkie. If it whizzes, beeps, whirrs and the lights blink, she has to have it.

In this case, them.

We are now the proud surrogate parents of Roomba 880, Scooba 450 and, the runt of the litter, Braava 380t — we just couldn't split up the kids — the latest generation of iRobot floor cleaners.

As with all things electronic, my wife leaves the boxes where I am most likely to trip over them on the off chance I might "hook them up." This process does not eliminate her inherent wealth of knowledge on how they work, how they will be implemented and who will maintain them because "she's seen the video." With this logic she can launch the space shuttle.

I work from home, so I gave in, released the kids from their containers and put them in their respective charging stations.

But truth alert here: I was skeptical.

iRobot has designed these little WALL-Es to do exactly what WALL-E did — clean. In this case, not quite a derelict asteroid but our small tumbledown home. Roomba vacuums, Scooba washes and Braava mops.

Roomba on a roll

Fully charged, I freed Roomba from its docking station. Off he goes in random patterns, under the couches, between chair legs, on rugs, off rugs — he just doesn't quit. I set him close to a set of stairs and he has sensors that won't let him leap to his death. You can control him from his touch pad or from an included remote control.

Although I'm not familiar with his language, I'm pretty sure beep-beep was a call for help when he managed to get stuck under a chair. "Help" and then he just shut down and waited for me to release him. He can be scheduled to clean at a prescribed time and will park himself when he's done — a trait he will eventually teach my wife.

Scooba do

Scooba is my new best friend. She allows you to determine the room size — "I will now clean a small room, OK?" she declares.

Then off she goes, executing a series of pirouettes and then criss-crossing the floor, laying down the cleaning solution and then sucking it all up.

When she's done she gives herself a couple of shakes, then stops. When you lift her up she states, "I've cleaned a small room. Would you like me to clean another room?" And, "Please empty my dirty water container."

Braava bravo

Braava dry or damp mops any hard floor surface using disposable or reusable microfibre cloths.

Virtual Wall lighthouses guide Roomba and Scooba through room-to-room cleaning while Virtual Wall barriers confine the kids to a specific room or area.

After a week, I can tell you, these guys pick up a lot of stuff. The Roomba container looks like it manufactured its own fur ball and was only usurped by Scooba's liquid waste. I think she cleaned my driveway.

We will be bonding on a weekly basis.

Tips for fall supper success

Dish it up. How to make sure you don't leave one hungry

SHEL ZOLKEWICH
River City Kitchen
winnipeg@metronews.ca

It's fall supper season in these parts, a cultural hoopla every bit as Manitoban as going to a social or sharing a photo of the fish you just caught. For first-timers, here are a few tips to help you make the most of this delicious time of year.

Where are they?

You're going to have to do some sleuthing to find a fall supper near you. Check grocery store bulletin boards (if your community still has them). Pay a visit to nearby community halls and look for notices. One of the best sources is put together by Orest Kinasevych. <http://kinasevych.ca/2014/06/17/manitoba-fall-suppers-2014/>.

When do they happen?

Fall suppers begin as early as mid September and run until mid-November. The sweet spot of suppers seems to be the third week in October.

Do I need a ticket?

Advanced tickets are mandatory. Organizers need to know how many people they will be feeding, so showing up on a whim is not an option. Make your plans in advance and look forward to a fabulous feast.

Say Grace

Because many fall suppers are organized by church groups, be prepared to bow your head before the meal. Part of the blessing may also be delivered in a language other than English.

What if I have an allergy?

In short, it's best to choose another dinner option. These are community events, put on by volunteers, intended to feed lots of people and raise a few dollars for special projects. There's really no time to cater to special requests.

How much does it cost?

Ticket prices range from $10 to $20 (with a half-price deal for kids). Buffet is the style of choice. Second helpings are encouraged—just make sure you leave room for pie.

1. Heat the oil in a large saucepan over medium heat. Add the onion and cook for 2-3 minutes, stirring, until softened. Add the garlic and tomato paste and cook, stirring, for a further 1 minute. Add the tomatoes and 2 1/2 cups (625 ml) of the chicken stock. Bring to the boil, then reduce the heat to low and simmer for 20 minutes while you make the meatballs.

2. For the meatballs, place the remaining 2 1/2 cups (625 ml) chicken stock in a saucepan and bring to the boil. Squeeze the sausage meat from the cas-

"I'm a fan of goat's cheese, but if you're not, cream cheese works equally well in this recipe," writes Valli Little in Faking It. "This dip can be used as a stuffing for roast chicken, too. Simply create a pocket between the skin and the breast, then carefully place the cheese mixture under the skin."

1. Place the goat cheese, vinegar, wine, oil, garlic, parsley and chives in a bowl with some sea salt and freshly ground black pepper. Beat well with a fork (or process in a food processor) until smooth, then serve with crusty bread and vegetables to dip.

Oilers down Jets in pre-season action

The Edmonton Oilers looked lost for half a pre-season game Wednesday night, but Ryan Nugent-Hopkins' goal midway through the second period sparked them to a 3-2 win over the Winnipeg Jets.

It was Edmonton's second pre-season win. The Jets are now 1-1.

TJ Galiardi and Matt Halischuk scored for the Jets.

Galiardi got things started on a breakaway off a long pass from Will O'Neill and beat Laurent Brossoit at 14:09. Jets forward Evander Kane had a breakaway as well in the first and earned a penalty shot on a hook but hit the crossbar. Wednesday night was the debut of the Kane, Mark Scheifele and Blake Wheeler line.

Staying alive

Cleveland's dream lives on with win over Royals

Yan Gomes hit a three-run homer, Michael Brantley got three more hits and Cleveland stayed in the AL wild-card chase for at least one more day with a 6-4 win over the Kansas City Royals on Wednesday night.

A loss would have eliminated Cleveland, but after blowing a 3-0 lead, they rallied to within 3-1/2 games of Kansas City and Oakland in the wild-card standings with four days left in the regular season.

All that's left for Derek Jeter to do is say goodbye.

Right now, though, the captain is still stewing over a lost season.

New York was eliminated from playoff contention Wednesday, wasting a three-run lead in a 9-5 loss to Nelson Cruz and the AL East champion Baltimore Orioles.

"It's tough. It's what you play for. It's a rough feeling," Jeter said.

Jeter went 0-for-4 as the designated hitter in his next-to-last home game, ending a seven-game hitting streak and dropping his average to .253.

The Yankees (81-77) missed the playoffs in consecutive years for the first time since 1992 and 1993. The only other time New York did not play in the post-season during the retiring captain's 20-season big-league career was in 2008.

"It's disappointing. It's frustrating," Yankees manager Joe Girardi said. "This is not where you want to be at this time of year."

When Jeter is lauded by fans Thursday night — should the forecasted rain hold off — for a career that included five of New York's 27 World Series titles, he will be playing his first game in the Bronx that has no implications on his team's playoff chances. (Jeter was out with an injury last year).

"For the guys that are coming back and the team that plays, it's a feeling you shouldn't like and you shouldn't want to get used to," Jeter said.

Cruz had two of his four singles and slugger Adam Jones a safety squeeze in a six-run fourth for Baltimore, which is trying to overtake the Los Angeles Angels for the AL's best record and home-field advantage throughout the post-season.

Stewart free from charges in Ward's death

Ontario County district attorney Michael Tantillo announces Wednesday that a grand jury had decided not to bring criminal charges against Tony Stewart. LAUREN PETRACCA/DEMOCRAT & CHRONICLE/THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Three-time NASCAR champion Tony Stewart will not be charged with the death of a fellow driver at a sprint car race in upstate New York, prosecutors said Wednesday in disclosing for the first time that the victim had enough marijuana in his system the night he died to impair his judgment.

Ontario County district attorney Michael Tantillo said a grand jury decided against charging Stewart with either second-degree manslaughter or criminally negligent homicide in the Aug. 9 death of

Kevin Ward Jr.'s family said in a statement that "this matter is not at rest" and they'll "pursue all remedies."

Tantillo also said two videos — one from a fan, the other from the tiny track — had been examined and enhanced. Both showed Stewart did not do anything wrong and that there was no "aberrational driving."

The decision came nearly seven weeks after Stewart's car struck and killed Ward, sending shock waves through the top racing series in the United States.

"This has been the toughest and most emotional experience of my life, and it will stay with me forever," Stewart said in a prepared statement.

Ryder Cup. Will Fergie's 'trance' work for Europe?

Just in case Rory McIlroy needed any more motivation to beat the United States in the Ryder Cup, he found the right man to fire him up.

McIlroy said he was in a "trance" as the Europe team received a pep talk from Alex Ferguson, who guided Manchester United to 13 Premier League titles and is considered Britain's greatest soccer manager.

The No. 1-ranked McIlroy, a United supporter who showed off the claret jug — the British Open trophy — at Old Trafford last month, sounded like a star-struck kid.

"I was just sitting there and looking up at him and I didn't take my eyes off him," the four-time major winner said on Wednesday, two days before Europe starts its defence of the Ryder Cup at Gleneagles in Scotland. "I was sort of in this trance just listening to everything that he was saying."

"We've played well this year. It's not something we should shy away from. It's something that we should embrace." Rory McIlroy on Europe being slight favourites at this year's Ryder Cup Ferguson, a Scot who retired last year after 26 seasons at United, spoke to the Europe team for about 30 minutes on Tuesday night.

Ferguson spoke about how his teams thrived as favourites, turning Old Trafford into a fortress. He said Europe should feel the same in Scotland.

"He talked a bit about that. We're slight favourites for a reason," McIlroy said.

Eichel taking his own path to No. 1

Junior hockey. American standout not focusing on comparisons to Canuck phenom McDavid

Connor McDavid and Jack Eichel have been compared in hockey circles for years. Only one of them can be the No. 1 pick in the 2015 NHL draft but their careers will probably be forever linked.

But besides the hype, they've met on the ice but never talked.

"I don't really know him," Eichel said of McDavid. "I'm sure we'll meet along the way."

McDavid and Eichel are on course to meet at the world junior championship Dec. 31 in Montreal when Canada faces the U.S. And they'll be mentioned together on the road to the draft.

The comparisons will continue long after that, but for now Eichel is trying to drown them out. While McDavid chose a third season with the OHL's Erie Otters, Eichel will be a freshman at Boston University.

"I just try to concentrate on what I can control and myself," Eichel said Wednesday in Buffalo where he'll play in USA Hockey's All-American Prospects Game Thursday.

Jack like Jeff

"I think I play pretty similar to Jeff Carter. He's a big skating centre, likes to shoot the puck, make plays." Jack Eichel

"There's going to be comparisons wherever you go. I just try to focus on myself and making sure I'm doing the right things and trying to get better."

Eichel, who turns 18 in late October, said college hockey is a "perfect fit" for him. The North Chelmsford, Mass., native isn't worried about passing up on junior and its busier, more professional-style schedule.

"That just means more time in the weight room, getting stronger," Eichel said. "You're playing against bigger, stronger, older guys.... I think that was what I needed to do to take my development to the next level."

Eichel's game is already at the next level or else he wouldn't be getting compared to McDavid. He had almost two points a game while with the U.S. National Team Development Program last season.

The six-foot-two, 194-pound centre said he thinks every area of his game could use some polishing but if he develops along the same path, he'll justify the attention he's getting.

Eichel is someone whose presence can "raise all the players around him," according to USA Hockey's Jim Johansson.

"To be No. 1, obviously, it's in anyone's competitive nature to be No. 1," Eichel said of the possibility of being the NHL's top pick next summer. "You dream about that your whole life. So if I sat here and told you that I didn't want to be in the No. 1 pick, I think I'd be lying, because I do. But I'm not going to lose sleep on it."
